RECRUITMENT NIGHT

This was the first JMWL event and recruitment cocktail for prospective ambassadors and collaborators.

Everyone had so much fun meeting each other and learning more about JMWL and the executive team.

Embrace DIVERSITY Event

"The Embrace Diversity event hosted by JMWL was an impactful event. The panelists discussed how it can be difficult to be a woman with different backgrounds in the business world and on a daily basis. They did not only talk about their experiences but how they overcame them to be better leaders."
-Mariola

"Hearing all of the panelists' stories and struggles about joining a male-dominated professional area gives me hope that if I believe in myself and keep battling and proving my potential, I can make it anywhere."
-Stephanie

"The message to remember from this event is how important it is to work on ourselves to become conscious of our biases and to act upon them by replacing negative thoughts with positive thoughts."
-Maurine

THE LEAD CONFERENCE 2.0

THE LEAD CONFERENCE 2.0

AMAZING MEMORIES!!!

The Lead Conference 2.0 included a main panel session addressing the issues surrounding the monopolization of leadership positions through panelists' success stories. We allowed students to discover their leadership style while allowing them to learn how to let their voices be heard. The event was followed by a lunch with mentors, and a networking session which allowed students to network with our recruiters.

HAPPY INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S DAY

CELEBRATING ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Today, in industrialized countries, women are a significant part of the workforce. They also have many rights that are the result of strong predecessors that relentlessly fought and paved the way for future generations. The 8th of March is globally celebrated as International Women's Day as a focus in the Women's Rights Movement to emphasize the prevalent issues in gender equality, violence and abuse against women and the lack of opportunities that still exist. But beyond that, it is also a day to recognize the achievements of the significant women in our lives.

In celebration of the 8th of March, here are the stories of four women in different fields that are positively impacting the world today.

Women in Science

KIARA NIRGHIN

Kiara is a young South African scientist who won the grand prize at the Google Science Fair at the age of 16. After going through one of the worst droughts in 45 years in her home country, in 2015, Kiara started researching a solution that would be inexpensive and sustainable for the environment. With those goals in mind, she invented a polymer made from waste that could retain 84% of its weight in water during droughts. This green and economical solution ensures a higher degree of food security in affected areas. Today she is a speaker for causes related to the environment and women's access to education.

Women's Education

MALALA
YOUSAFZAI

Since 2012, Malala has become an international symbol for the fight for women's equal access to education. In her native country of Pakistan, she was targeted by the Taliban because of speaking out for Women's education. At the age of 15, she fearlessly stood up when the man holding a firearm came out looking for her and called out her name. That's when she got shot. Even after going through this traumatizing event, today, she is more active than ever in the fight for women's equal rights.

Women in Entrepreneurship

KIRAN
MAZUMDAR-SHAW

In 1974, Kiran got curious about her dad's work and he encouraged her to become a brewmaster although it was a career path that was very unconventional for a woman. After getting her degree, she quickly realized that a woman had little chance to advance in terms of career in India. She looked into opportunities abroad and it opened the doors for her to realize her ambitions. She later launched her biopharmaceutical company from a shed she rented. Because she never gave up through hardships, she is today the second wealthiest self-made woman in India.

Women in Politics

ING-WEN TSAI

In 2016, Ing-Wen became the first female leader of Taiwan, traditionally a patriarchal country. Ing-Wen is supportive of the underprivileged groups in society such as the poor, women, children, LGBT groups and Indigenous people and has taken action to reduce unemployment, expand childcare support and much more in order to give back to society. Ing-Wen made many political decisions to benefit her country and develop its economy in an attempt to reaffirm its personal strengths and its independence. She notably vowed to encouraging work in biotech and renewable resources.
